Welcome to the Special Japanese Airbase Spotting edition of THE AVIATION MAGAZINE.

Two of our contributing photojournalists recently visited Japan. Instead of just using a few pages in our regular edition, we decided to have an extended coverage with more images for you to look at. We even cut back on the narrative to the absolute minimum just letting the images speak for themselves.

We look forward to bringing you many more air shows for the rest of the 2016 season as well as air base visits and exercises with a lot of enthusiasm, and to bringing you the "Best for Free" ® e-based aviation magazine as we take you to aviation events "As close as you can get without being at an air show!" ® Tell all your friends to like us on Facebook, follow us for the latest reviews and news on Twitter and to subscribe on Joomag to automatically receive the latest issue of THE AVIATION MAGAZINE.

Japanese Airbase spotting

By Peter Thivessen and Wolfgang Jarisch

Two of our senior members have been planning since 2015 to visit Japan to do some airbase spotting, and in the Spring of 2016 they made their journey to the Land of the Rising Sun.

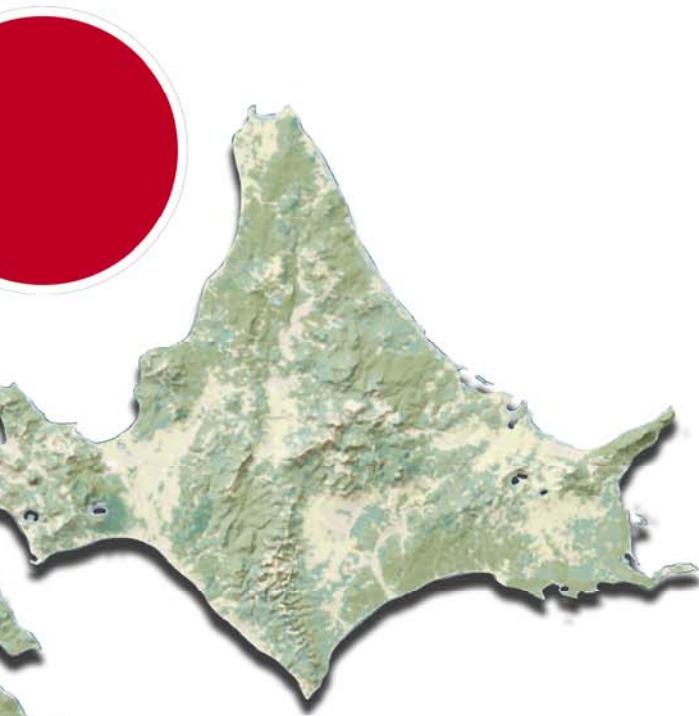

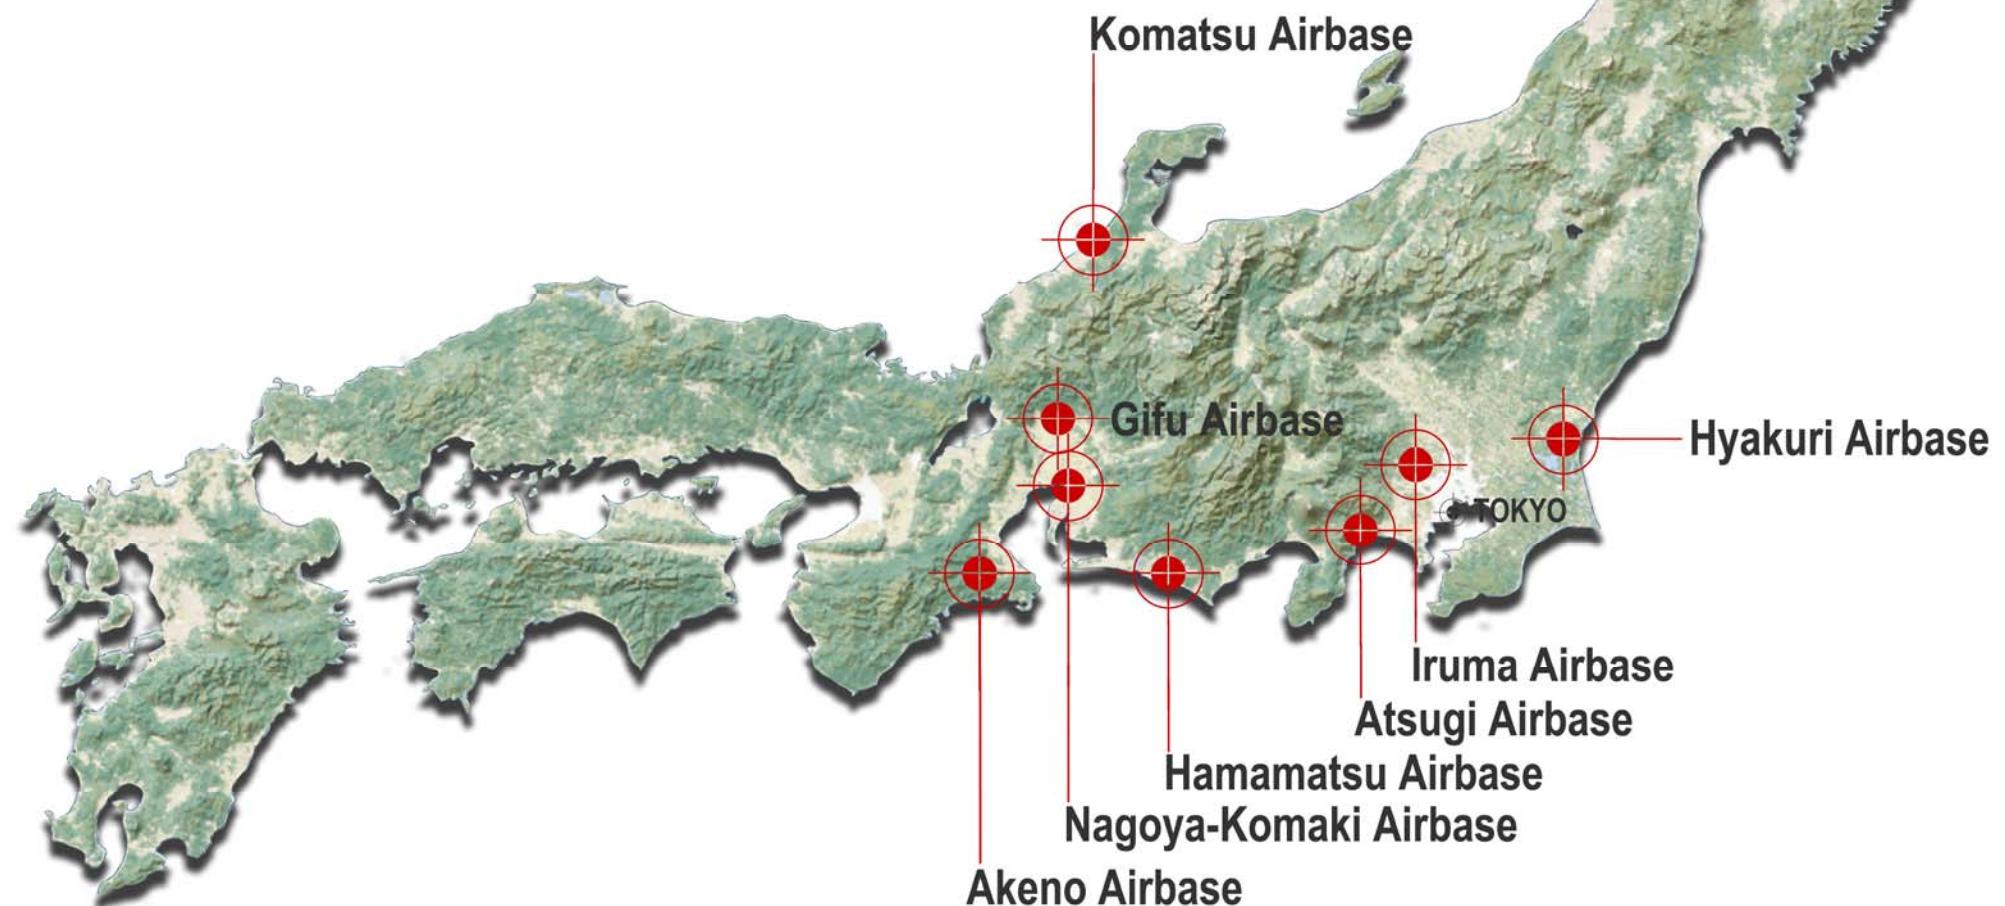

Going to Japan from Europe for two weeks is an expensive proposition when one takes everything into consideration. The airfare of 850 € per person actually was quite reasonable when compared to the other costs such as for two; hotels 1500 €, car rental 1140 €, gasoline for 3084 km (travelling) 235 €, Express Way tolls 480 €, parking in Tokyo 240 € and then one can add food and other miscellaneous necessities.

Once in Japan, their schedule and plans were constantly adjusted due to inclement weather. After all, to spot aircraft landing and taking off, one needs a bit of luck with weather and wind directions. Fog and rain are two things one needs to avoid as much as possible. A step ladder is also an advisable accessory along with long focal lens from 400 to 600mm in order to take images of aircraft taxiing on the runways or up in the air.

Driving in Japan
Driving is on wrong side (just like in England, cars drive on the left side of the road and have the driver's seat and steering wheel on their right side) so that takes adjusting, and it is a slow going at the best, travelling a mere 350 kms takes 7 hours! And did we mentioned the high toll rates for the roads? An International Driving Permit (IDP) or an official Japanese translation of their driver's license is a must to drive or rent a car.

The airbase spotting images are listed in the same order as they went to take them. While Peter and Wolfgang faced a couple of days of bad weather the overall results were priceless!

Atsugi is a large naval air base of JMSDF located 40 Km south-west of Tokyo. It is also the largest United States Navy air base in the Pacific Ocean and houses the squadrons of Carrier Air Wing 5 (the first carrier airwing to be permanently forward deployed) which deploys with the aircraft carrier USS Ronald Reagan (CVN-76). NAS Atsugi was a major naval air base during both the Korean War and Vietnam War, serving fighters, bombers, and transport aircraft.
